

Veoneer Announces Offering of Common Stock and Convertible Senior Notes

Stockholm, Sweden, May 20, 2019: Veoneer, Inc. (NYSE: VNE and SSE: VNE SDB), a pure-play company focused on Advanced Driver Assistance Systems (ADAS) and Automated Driving (AD), announced today that it intends to commence concurrent offerings of $350 million of shares of common stock and $150 million aggregate principal amount of convertible senior notes due 2024. Neither offering is contingent on the completion of the other offering. No public offer is made in Sweden or elsewhere in the European Economic Area and any offer made will be exclusively to qualified investors.

Veoneer also intends to grant the underwriters of the common stock offering a 30-day option to purchase up to an additional $52.5 million of shares of common stock and to grant the underwriters of the notes offering a 30-day option to purchase up to an additional $22.5 million aggregate principal amount of notes. Each of these options would be exercisable solely to cover over-allotments, if any.

Veoneer intends to use the net proceeds from the common stock offering and concurrent convertible notes offering for working capital and other general corporate purposes.

The notes will be senior, unsecured obligations of Veoneer, and interest will be payable semi-annually in arrears. The notes will mature in 2024 unless earlier repurchased, redeemed or converted. Prior to a set free convertibility date in 2024, the notes will be convertible at the option of holders during certain periods, upon satisfaction of certain conditions. Thereafter, the notes will be convertible at the option of holders at any time until the close of business on the second scheduled trading day immediately preceding the maturity date. Veoneer will settle conversions of the notes by paying or delivering, as the case may be, cash, shares of its common stock, or a combination of cash and shares of its common stock, at its election. The interest rate, conversion rate, and other terms of the notes will be determined at the time of pricing of the notes offering.

A limited portion of the common stock offered in this offering may be delivered to a depository which will then issue Swedish Depository Receipts, or SDRs, with each SDR representing one share of our common stock. During the offering process and for a certain period thereafter, the ability of holders of common stock to convert their common stock into SDRs will be temporarily suspended. The suspension is in effect as of May 20, 2019. Following the completion of the offering, the Company intends to register a prospectus with the Swedish Financial Supervisory Authority (Sw.Finansinspektionen) (SFSA) and lift the suspension. While this is expected to occur in mid to late June, delays may occur. The Company will cover the deposit fee charged by SEB, but no other fees, for conversion of common stock into SDRs for the 30 day period following the publication of the Swedish prospectus.

Morgan Stanley is acting as lead book-running manager for the common stock offering and the notes offering, and Nordea and SEB are acting as joint bookrunners for each offering.

Each offering is being made only by means of a prospectus. Copies of the prospectus related to each offering, when available, may be obtained from Morgan Stanley & Co. LLC, 180 Varick Street, 2nd Floor, New York, NY 10014, Attention: Prospectus Department.

In order to facilitate the offering of the common stock, the underwriters may engage in transactions that stabilize, maintain or otherwise affect the price of the common stock. Specifically, the underwriters may sell more shares than they are obligated to purchase under the underwriting agreement, creating a short position. A short sale is covered if the short position is no greater than the number of shares available for purchase by the underwriters under the over-allotment option. The underwriters can close out a covered short sale by exercising the over-allotment option or purchasing shares in the open market. In determining the source of shares to close out a covered short sale, the underwriters will consider, among other things, the open market price of shares compared to the price available under the over-allotment option. The underwriters may also sell shares in excess of the over-allotment option, creating a naked short position. The underwriters must close out any naked short position by purchasing shares in the open market. A naked short position is more likely to be created if the underwriters are concerned that there may be downward pressure on the price of the common stock in the open market after pricing that could adversely affect investors who purchase in this offering. As an additional means of facilitating this offering, the underwriters may bid for, and purchase, shares of common stock in the open market to stabilize the price of the common stock. These activities may raise or maintain the market price of the common stock above independent market levels or prevent or retard a decline in the market price of the common stock. Moreover, as a portion of the shares of common stock offered in the offering may be delivered in the form of SDRs, any of these activities may also be undertaken in the SDRs. The underwriters are not required to engage in these activities and may end any of these activities at any time. These activities may be effected on any securities market, over-the-counter market, stock exchange or otherwise, including on the New York Stock Exchange and (in respect of SDRs) Nasdaq Stockholm, and may be undertaken at any time during the period in which the over-allotment option may be exercised. Morgan Stanley & Co. LLC may undertake, on behalf of the underwriters, certain of these activities by or through its agents or affiliates, including Morgan Stanley & Co. International plc.
